Weary of my load of sin,
Longing to have peace within,
With a broken heart I cause,
And my daviour took me in,

Many were the wasted years, Vain desires filled my breast; Many were the bilter tears That I shed in search of rest.

Longing to be estimfied,
Pleasure I oft tried, and still
They but left an aching void
Which the world could nover fill.

Tired of the world's vain joys, Yearning for the better part,
